Atelier Internship

Six months at the form, at the frame, and backstage at the runway. A studio internship in a working slow fashion atelier, from the development of a collection through its presentation at Berlin Fashion Week. You work by hand, led by Marie-Louise herself.

THE HOUSE

We are a slow fashion label in Berlin, working in crochet and natural fibers only. Our current collection was shown at Berlin Fashion Week in July, and the next one is built during your six months.

The work, over six months

THE CRAFT

Draping and pattern construction: draping on the form, then translating muslin into flat production patterns, with internal structure such as corsetry, boning and padding for the most demanding pieces.

Garment construction and upcycling: cutting and assembling silks, linens and reworked archival material, and adapting patterns so found material reads as intended.

Hand embroidery and crochet: bead and tambour embroidery at the frame, and the hand-shaping of crocheted elements for placement.

Show support: technical dressing at the runway, with live fittings and backstage alterations under time pressure.

WHO WE LOOK FOR

Attitude first. You have genuine energy and you want six months of real making, not observing.

You already crochet. Basic is enough.

You are a fashion design student in Berlin, completing a mandatory internship (Pflichtpraktikum) as part of your studies.

You start on the date your program sets, any day between 1 September and 1 October 2026.

Apply through our careers page, where the full description and the application form live: marielouisemueller.com/pages/careers. Applications are read personally, and every applicant hears back.
